

You've Waited Long Enough. Access to Dermatologic Care Is in Crisis—Help Change That.

Across Canada, patients are waiting too long to see a dermatologist.

With just over 800 certified dermatologists serving more than 40 million people, the system is stretched thin—and it's only getting worse.

In some regions, wait times exceed a year. Simply put, this is no longer acceptable.

As your dermatologist, I see every day how delayed care affects people's lives – from serious skin conditions that impact quality of life to potentially life-threatening cases of melanoma.

That is why I am supporting a national petition launched by the Canadian Dermatology Association and Melanoma Canada – and I invite you to join me.

The petition calls on the government to:

- Increase the number of trained dermatologists in Canada
- Invest in specialty care alongside primary care
- Support new technologies that improve access and accuracy – especially in rural and remote areas

Want to help?

Scan the QR code to sign the petition.

Your voice can help improve access to dermatologic care for all Canadians.

Thank you!

